Entertainment at The Norris Center

One Woman Show - Rusty Brown

What I've Learned from Witty Women

This is a humorous show by Rusty Brown, she draws from favorite authors, zeroing in on women's lives and their take on dieting, aging, parenting, loving --and even how to get your man to buy a new suit. We find that clothes are "right" if they push something out, hold something in or cover something up, and we "dish" about Martha Stewart.

Thursday, February 23, 2012 • 7:30 pm • $12

West of Galway

The Norris Center presents, "An Evening In Ireland" with Southwest Florida's premier Irish Entertainment. Enjoy the music and dance of Ireland with performances from The Tir Na Nog Irish Dancers, the Champion, Harp & Thistle Pipe Band and the 2010 winners, "Best Irish Band", West Of Galway.

Friday, February 24 • 7:30 p.m. • Single Ticket: $22

One Woman Show - Janina Birtola

An original one-woman play about Ida Tarbell, the investigative journalist whose work helped break up the Standard Oil Company. Labeled as one of the "muckraking" journalists of the early 20th century, Tarbell resented the title and preferred to view herself as an historian. As can be seen from her works, she was more interested in uncovering truth than in promoting any particular political agenda.

March 29, 2012 • 7:30 • $12

"MISCAST"

Offers a night of musical hilarity and hijinks. Imagine David Hasselhoff singing "I Feel Pretty" from "West Side Story", an all male version of the Rockettes or Martha Stewart performing an aria from "Tosca". Think they might be miscast? That's what this show is all about. The Norris Center presents some of your favorite Naples-area performers singing songs written for characters they have absolutely no business playing. Every musical theatre performer dreams of roles they are utterly wrong for. So come join Over-The-Top Productions as they present an evening of age-defying and gender-bending hilarious fun in MISCAST!

Thursday, March 30 - 31 • 7:30 • $18

GULFSHORE PLAYHOUSE

at THE NORRIS CENTER

Race by David Mamet

January 27 – February 12, 2012

(Preview performance January 26)

The hot new Broadway hit Race follows a law firm taking on a racially-charged case. Three attorneys, two black and one white, are offered a chance to defend a white man charged with a crime against a black woman. The plot unfolds as the lawyers and defendant grapple with the evidence of the case and their own feelings. A true case of “he said, she said”, Race will make you question what you thought, what you heard, and what you think you know. Don’t miss this thought-provoking new play by the master of great dialogue.

The Fox on the Fairway by Ken Ludwig

March 2- 23, 2012 (Preview performance March 1)

The hilarious romp by Ken Ludwig (Lend Me a Tenor, Moon Over Buffalo), pulls the rug out from underneath the stuffy denizens of a private country club. Filled with mistaken identities, slamming doors, and over-the-top romantic shenanigans, it’s a furiously paced comedy that recalls the Marx Brothers’ classics. Ken Ludwig’s The Fox on the Fairway is a brand-new tribute to the great English farces of the 1930s and 1940s. You won’t want to miss this charmingly madcap adventure – about love, life, and man’s eternal love affair with... golf.

A Streetcar Named Desire by Tennessee Williams

April 6 – 22, 2012 (Preview performance April 5)

The Pulitzer Prize-winning play follows the story of Blanche DuBois, a weak and disturbed woman on a desperate prowl for some place in the world to call her own. After losing their ancestral home, Belle Reve, Blanche shows up at the doorstep of her sister, Stella, in the French Quarter of New Orleans. Putting on airs of refinement and Southern gentility, Blanche tries to impress her brother-in-law, and his gentle, good-natured friend, Mitch. Seeking to escape from reality, and an emblem of a lost traditional South, Blanche becomes a victim of the harsh present. Marlon Brando starred in the Broadway production and the 4-time Academy Award-winning film adaptation. This will mark the 65th Anniversary of this enduring Tennessee Williams classic.

The Hedges Family Eco Center

This unique structure was designed by architect Don Nick and built in the early 1960's, just after Hurricane Donna struck Naples. The glass walls provide spectacular views of the building, which is paneled with rich, vibrant redwood and cypress. The Hedges Family Eco Center provides up-to-date information, including directions to the natural areas of Naples and Collier County, including parks, preserves, birding areas, museums and beach preserves that are maintained for public use by County, State, National, and not-for-profit institutions. The City Ambassador Naturalists provide information about the natural history of the Preserve and surrounding areas. We also offer after school programs and field trips providing environmental learning experiences for children. The Hedges Eco Center is home to the Dr. Robert W. NAPLES PRESERVE 1690 Tamiami Trail N. Naples, FL 34102

1) Scrub Oak Community The scrub oak (Quercus geminata) forms the complex food chain base of this community. Almost every animal depends on the acorns of the oak for survival. The oaks appear stunted due to the fact that they do not have to compete for sunlight, and the soil is nutrient poor. Twelve endemic plant and animal species are found in this community and nowhere else.

2) Pine-Flatwoods Community This type of fire-dependent community once covered over fifty percent of Florida's total land area. Although almost undetectable, a slight fall in elevation and firmer soil allows large pines to do very well. Pinus elliottii var. densa, Slash Pine with its understory of saw palmetto (Serenoa repens) is home to many birds and other animals (deer, bobcat, black bear).

3) Fire Dependency Fire is important in the maintenance of pine flatwoods and scrub with a greatly reduced frequency for the scrub community. A burning cycle of one fire every two to seven years is nearly ideal for pine flatwoods, while a twenty to seventy year burn cycle maintains scrub lands. This site provides a view of an ecotone, the transition zone from one community to the next. In front of you is the pine flatwoods and to your left, the scrub community.

4) Epiphytes The scrub oak, because of its thick cork-like bark, is home to many species of air plants. Air plants are epiphytic bromeliads related to the pineapple. Air plants, along with orchids, use the oak for support and derive their nutrients from organic debris and rainwater.

5) Gopher Tortoise Burrow The gopher tortoise is famous for digging underground burrows ten to thirty-five feet long with "bedrooms" at the end. These burrows are found in sandy, well-drained areas such as scrub communities. They utilize the gopher apple and other plants of this community for food. Their favorite food is the flower of the prickly pear cactus (Opuntia compressa).

6) Disturbed Area (area in succession) This southernmost view of the Naples Preserve is an area in recovery. Years of abuse and mowing have left an almost open field (meadow) within the scrub community. Here, we are able to see a succession of scrub community and pine flatwood plants begin the long process of recovery back to their original community compositions. At present, wildflowers and grasses dominate this site.

7) Lighting Strike Area In the rainy season, lightning strikes often cause fires. These fires are an important part of the natural cycle of South Florida. Fires keep the understory clear and allow for seed germination.
